- Rosemary Flores was sworn in and stated she did not do a Jessner's chemical peel she did a 30% Lactic Image peel for pigment and hydration. Rosemary stated she wanted complainant to purchase a sunscreen and complainant declined. Rosemary stated the complainant commented that she was going on vacation to the beach and complained when she returned from her vacation. Rosemary stated she applied healing a mask, balm and vitamin C. Rosemary also stated she does do family and friends at her home. Investigator Linda Stroh testified that on May 31, 2017, she spoke to the complainant Jenny Cruz regarding her allegation and the service that took place in May of 2016 and the complainant stated the following: she went to the respondent's home, salon set up on the second floor, requested a facial-Jessner Peel and was applied, respondent did not have a pre or post peel instructions, sold her an Image acid wash and Image cream to use each night, complainant called Rosemary because face was burning and raw and was told to purchase Vanicream face wash and cream at Walgreens and after face peeled complainant stated was left with dark pigmented spots around the chin and eyes. On June 10, 2016, complainant sought medical attention and was prescribed Hydroquinone bleaching cream for the pigmented dark spots under the chin. On June 10, 2016, complainant phoned Rosemary who asked her to return to her home so she could look at her skin and told complainant to not use the cream prescribed by the doctor, Rosemary said a Lactic treatment would take care of the dark spots and performed the treatment on the chin area, which resulted in burns and scarring. Complainant returned to Rosemary and was given makeup to cover the chin and was offered to do laser treatment and pay for doctor's visits. Complainant refused the laser treatment but did leave address to send a check for medical expenses. On July 22, 2016, returned to the doctor and spoke with the aesthetician who gave complainant instruction and was to receive further medical treatment. Investigator Linda Stroh stated we do have medical documentation and yesterday we received a copy of a check for reimbursement for services in the amount of $350.00 issued to Jenny Cruz from Rosemary Flores dated May 31, 2017. Complainant Jenny Cruz was sworn in and stated she had never been to an aesthetician before and expressed an interest in getting a facial to her friends, so we went to Rosemary's home. Jenny stated she has heard of chemical peels did not know much about them and has minor age spots and decided to do the peel. Jenny stated after the peel she asked Rosemary what should I be doing to care for my skin while I'm peeling, Jenny stated Rosemary did not have a post plan and went to her shelf and sold me an acid wash and cream by Image and to do this each night. Jenny stated she did the acid wash and cream each night but her face was burning and had to stop using the product, Jenny stated she called Rosemary what was happening and Rosemary told me to stop using the product and go to Walgreens and by Vanicream cream for sensitive skin. Jenny stated she bought the product and when she stopped peeling she had a dark spot on her chin, so Jenny stated she went to her dermatologist and was prescribed Hydroquinone bleaching cream. Jenny stated she called Rosemary and told her what was going on and Rosemary's asked her to come over to take a look at it. Rosemary did a Lactic treatment and it got worse, it started burning and blistering and it has been over a year and I still have a dark spot on my chin and my cheeks. Rosemary did offer to do a laser treatment but I did not want to do that, I told her if she wanted to help with my doctors' bills that would be good.
